Read the quote below aloud to create your first Otter.ai recording

We have a lot of digital poverty locally, and communities are just catching up right now...the virtual world is quite normal for majority of people, but with the understanding that with everybody I meet I have to make sure that we go through the basics. Basics of writing an email basics of Microsoft, everything that might be normal for the rest of the world is not normal.

So within our communities, you're playing catch up right now. So we're trying to transfer all the skills that we've learned ourselves down to the grassroots communities as well.

You don't need to read this bit below!

An National Lottery Community Fund Roundtable community group participant talks about learning over the pandemic and the issues small organisations are facing.